As with all old texts, different versions ~~shall~~ will have slightly different wordings or character variants. I shall be using version D~~A~~ as the base reference, with canonical variant-character substitutions indicated by juxtaposition, with no delimiters.
~~sub (printed) & preferred, etc.~~

[A] <https://archive.org/details/02094034.cn>

[B] https://commons.wikimedia.org/w/index.php?title=File:文淵閣四庫全書_0797冊.djvu

(q) shall mean the printed page number is 797-q

Note that $p - q = 5$.

~~[C] <https://common>~~

[C] ~~etc~~ <https://ctext.org/sunzi-suan-jing>

C_p shall mean #*n*p

(v, q) shall mean Volume v, line q (ctext numbering).

[D] <https://ctext.org/library.pl?if=en&res=80226>

D_p shall mean if=en&file=86926&page=p.

I mostly follow the ^{line} paragraph breaks of A and B and D, ~~These differ slightly from those in C:~~ with more logical groupings than
